

CALL FOR PAPERS
for
THE 10th EARLY STAGES
STUDENT SYMPOSIUM ON LITERATURE, LANGUAGE AND CULTURE
to be held online on June 3, 2025

There are countless cultural, social, economic and philosophical issues that are reflected upon in various “texts” of the English-speaking countries. While examining these themes, students have an opportunity to demonstrate that research methods used in different academic disciplines could benefit each other. Therefore, the symposium provides students with a forum for an exchange of ideas and thoughts concerning the “texts” of English-speaking countries.

The symposium aims to develop new analytical approaches to literature, language and culture of the English-speaking countries, with particular attention to the students’ own research areas. Thus, students and doctoral students whose academic interests intersect with linguistics, literary and cultural studies are encouraged to consider participating in the symposium.

Students and doctoral students are cordially invited to submit conference papers on various aspects of “texts” originating from English-speaking cultures. Presentations should be in English and should not exceed 20 minutes.

To express interest in active participation, please send a short abstract (about 200 words) by May 15, 2025 to the following email address: dominika.bugno-narecka@kul.pl The abstract should clearly indicate the research area (literature, linguistics or culture).

All queries regarding the conference should also be sent to the above email address.
