

BIBLIOGRAFIA

- Beierwaltes W.: Denken des Einen, Frankfurt am Main 1985.
Dillon J. M.: Iamblichi Chalcidensis in Platonis Dialogos Comentatorium Fragmenta, Leiden 1973.
Hadot P.: Porphyre et Victorinus, t. II, Paris 1968.
Kroll W.: Ein neuplatonischer Parmenidescommentar in einem Turiner Palimpsest, „Rheinische Museum“ 47 (1892), s. 599 nn.

THE RELATION: ONE/MANY AS THE PHILOSOPHICAL FOUNDATION
OF PROCLUS'S METAPHYSICS

Summary

The analysis inherent in this text is basic for the construction of Proclus's system, namely the problem of the relation: the One/Multiplicity. This question is central and constitutes the most meaningful systems of Greek philosophy. The relation: the One/Multiplicity is the starting point in constructing metaphysical systems, it makes that all that is its consequence must have and has a relational nature. This eliminates thinking about the world in terms of isolated, autonomic, and unrelated objects. The considerations in question have shown the most important stages in the problems: the One/Multiplicity, starting from Plato, through Plotinus Porphyry, Iamblichus, down to Proclus.

Translated by Jan Klos

Słowa kluczowe: relacja Jedno–Wiele, Platon, Plotyn, Porfiriusz, Jamblich, Proklos.

Key words: the relation: the One/Multiplicity, Plotinus, Porphyry, Iamblichus, Proclus.

Information about Author: Prof. Dr BOGDAN DEMBIŃSKI – Department of History of Ancient and Medieval Philosophy, Institute of Philosophy, University of Silesia; address for correspondence: ul. Bankowa 11, PL 40-007 Katowice; e-mail: dembin@saba.wns.us.edu.pl